

Support Coordination

Your questions answered!

The team of Support Coordinators at Participate Australia are running three FREE online sessions that will explain what makes a good support coordinator and how they can help you, how to submit an effective review, and examining Supported Independent Living (SIL) and Specialist Disability Accommodation (SDA).

01 Session 1: What makes a good Support Coordinator?

This session will highlight what makes a good Support Coordinator, as well as the knowledge and core competencies your coordinator should have. It covers the knowledge a coordinator should have as a subject matter expert in all things NDIS, as well as some of the things a coordinator should not do! It explores how they are expected to support not only the participant, but how they work with planners and operate within the guidelines of the NDIS.

02 Session 2: How to Submit an effective review

This session will cover the different types of reviews, who can submit a review, understanding what is reasonable and necessary, what are your rights and how to challenge a review.

03 Session 3: SIL and SDA – What you need to know!

This session will discuss what SIL and SDA are, how they differ in terms of what they pay for, and how to become eligible for one or both. We will also discuss the different classifications of SDA, and how to start your own SIL group home or SDA property.
